

Scholarship Justification

I come from a family of five, with three of us currently pursuing education. We are entirely dependent on my father, a government employee earning approximately 50,000 PKR per month. As the sole earner, he bears the full financial responsibility of our household.

Recently, due to educational expenses and emergency medical needs, we had to take a loan of 700,000 PKR. A portion of my father's limited income is now being deducted every month to repay this debt, further straining our already tight finances.

My elder brother is studying Chinese at NUML University in Islamabad and lives with friends to manage costs. Even so, his expenses remain significant. My younger sister attends a government school where tuition is free, but we still need to cover the costs of books, uniforms, and other essentials. I completed both my schooling and intermediate education from government institutions and have now moved to Lahore to pursue higher education in Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning through a NAVTTC-supported program. To minimize costs, I live with friends, but my share of rent alone is 15,000 PKR per month - not including food, transportation, and other basic needs.

Every month is a challenge. Despite my father's tireless efforts and sacrifices, it's becoming increasingly difficult to sustain our educational needs amid rising living costs and medical expenses. He never complains, but I see the toll it takes on him.

Receiving financial aid from PGI would not just ease this burden - it would be a turning point. It would allow me to continue my education without adding further stress to my family and enable me to focus on my goals. I am committed to my studies and passionate about contributing to society through the field of technology.

I sincerely request you to consider my application for financial aid, with the hope that this opportunity will help ease my family's struggles and support my journey toward a better future.
